Section 11 Sharing Folders

Objectives:

BY THE END OF THIS SECTION YOU WILL BE ABLE TO:

- Delegate Access
- Open Other's Calendar
- Share Your Private Folders
- Add Other's Mailbox To You Folder List

SHARING Mailbox and FOLDERS

Just as you might have an assistant who helps you manage your incoming paper mail, Microsoft Outlook provides similar functionality by making it possible for you to give another person access to your Inbox and any other Outlook folder you want. The process of granting someone permission to open your folders, read and create items, and respond to requests for you is called assigning folder permissions.

As the person granting permission, you determine the level of access the delegate has. You can give a delegate permission to read items in your folders, or to read, create, modify, and delete items. You can give a delegate permission to send mail and to respond to mail on your behalf. The delegate can also organize meetings on your behalf and respond to meeting requests and task requests sent to you. If you grant someone access to your folders, that delegate has access to the personal items in the folders.

If you want to assign permissions, your mail must be delivered to your mailbox on the server, not to a personal folders file on your hard disk.

Permission Levels

With author or editor permissions, the delegate has send-on-behalf-of permission. Sent messages contain both the manager's and delegate's names. Message recipients see the manager's name in the Sent On Behalf Of box and the delegate's name in the From box.

If a delegate needs permission to deal with meeting requests and responses only, the manager can select the Send meeting requests and responses only to my delegates, not to me check box on the Delegates tab and does not need to grant permission to his Inbox. Meeting requests and responses will go directly to the delegate's Inbox. The delegate will, however, need editor permission to the manager's Calendar folder, because once they respond to the meeting on behalf of the manager, the meeting is automatically added to the manager's Calendar folder

To give someone the authority to open your mailfolders in addition to their own rather than just access to open say your inbox you MUST also set permissions on your mailfolder as well as individually assign permissions to the folders you wish them to access for example your calendar and inbox. Then when they choose to open the extra mailbox they will have the necessary permissions to open up your mailbox and the folders you set permissions against.

Following are the some of the levels of permission that a delegate can be granted:

	about items are in columns. To control the level of detail that appears, columns can be added and removed, items can be filtered by criteria specified by the user, or items can be sorted or grouped. A table view type is best to view mail messages, viewed in blocks of time for one or more days or weeks or for a month. A day/week/month view type is best to view appointments and meetings, and tasks scheduled for work on specific dates.

Card	Items appear as individual cards similar to an address card file. To control the level of detail that appears, fields can be added or removed in an item or items can be filtered by criteria the user specifies. A card view type is best to view contacts and any items the user wants to find quickly in alphabetical order.

- 7. View conflicts shows duplicated emails that have downloaded more than once for whatever reason or accidentally been duplicated (using ctrl key when selecting) these can be cleaned up. Use the view conflicts size to check how big these conflicts are.
- If all of these tools (bar autoarchive) have not significantly reduced your mailbox size then we have to look at archiving

Archiving

Archiving is a method of transferring the old emails from your mailbox (exchange server) to a data file (PST file) on your local computer (or a network location) to free up much needed space the emails do not need to be deleted they are stored to be accessible again if needed in the future through outlook.

The default location is hard to access in the normal way ofthings so it is good to note the location of where these archives are made. Creating a data file beforehand (next section) is a good method of directing them to an easily identifyable place whether locally on on a network location you have easy access to.

Manually archiving is the preferable option as you have the ability to set the parameters of the archive beforehand.

Section 13 Work Offline

Objectives:

BY THE END OF THIS SECTION YOU WILL BE ABLE TO:

- Create and access data files
- Set Up Offline Folders
- Synchronise The Folders

Work Offline Using Exchange Server

Working offline gives you access to your information regardless of whether you are connected to your e-mail server. For example, laptop users can work with their e-mail, even when not connected to the e-mail server. Offline folders work slightly differently in 2010 to earlier versions

Work With offline folders

With offline folders it is possible to take a folder from a server location, work with the contents of the folder when you are not connected to the network, and then update the folder and its corresponding server folder to make the contents of both identical. This process is called synchronizing folders.

You can add, delete, and modify the contents of an offline folder exactly as you can with a folder on a server. For example, you can change and move items in your offline Inbox, send messages that are placed in your offline Outbox, and read your offline public folders. Meanwhile, you will receive new messages in your Inbox on the server, and other users might add, delete, and change items in public folders. But you will not be aware of these changes on the server until you synchronize.

Offline folders are stored in the Offline Folder (.ost) file. This file is located on your computer hard disk and is available even when the network is down. The .ost file can be compacted to save space on your computer.

The way in which you set up to work offline the first time depends on the type of e-mail server that you use.

> To Set Up Offline Folders:

Data files (PST)

Data files PST files are similar in a way to OST files in that they store items locally but they are not for synchronisation like OST files and are used more for storage and downloading mail into from internet accounts.

Storing items in a PST file means that items are completely outside the exchange environment offline folders are merely a mirror for the server information PST files are not once items are there they are your responsibility and has nothing to do with exchange.

- 10. Create others if you need to (like an archive file previous)
- Use this dialog to add already created data files like old archive files if you wish to access old emails. Use the ADD button to locate and add them.
- 12. When you close the dialog there should be a new root item in the navigation pane which you may create folders and store email in
- You may create any type of folder in the data file to store contacts tasks etc

Storing items under this root folder removes them from the exchange environment and frees space on your exchange server.
